SACAP's Advanced Certificate in Counselling and Communication Skills builds on an existing foundation of learning. It is a short, 12-18 month, vocational course that's specifically designed to further your knowledge and insight in counselling, communication, psychology, human behaviour and community-based mental health. Not only does the Advanced Certificate provide a strong focus on applied counselling and communication skills for application in a variety of environments, but also develops deeper knowledge in specific areas of your choice.

This accredited qualification is nationally benchmarked and internationally comparable, which means that as a graduate, you'll be eligible for admission into SACAP's Bachelor of Applied Social Science Degree with the potential for credit transfer for the same modules already completed, provided that you meet the admission requirements for that programme.
