

BACHELOR OF APPLIED SOCIAL SCIENCE (MAJORING IN PSYCHOLOGY AND CRIMINOLOGY)

- Gain a holistic understanding of crime in SA within an applied social science framework.
- Learn how to provide victim support.
- Gain practical skills through Work Integrated Learning.

This undergraduate degree is an excellent choice if you are interested in working in the criminal justice, social development, or mental health sectors – or, if you want to formalise your existing knowledge in these spheres.

This interdisciplinary qualification, with dual majors in psychology and criminology, is designed in response to South Africa's urgent need to address deeply rooted social challenges. Throughout the degree, you will gain a foundational understanding of human behaviour and the criminal mindset, the larger social and systemic issues that drive crime, and the social systems that respond to crime. Most importantly, you will learn how to apply psychology principles and methodologies to advocate for social justice and provide support to victims of crime.
